God's Provision

We so often do not trust in God
And lack faith that He will provide,
We worry, we fret, and we fuss so much,
In His blessings, we do not abide

For how can the hand of Almighty God
Stretch forth with all that we need
If we are not even expecting it
And have doubt instead of belief?

His word has said so many times
That He will provide for His children
He won't leave us to go begging for bread,
But feed us from the storehouse of heaven

Look at the sparrows, the birds of the air,
Are we not worth more than they?
And consider the lilies, see how they grow,
How magnificently they are arrayed

So much more than the lilies of the field,
Our clothing, will He not provide?
More than the sparrows that feed from His hand,
Our food, He will not deny

We really must believe in God's provision
As sure as the fresh morning dew,
For He already knows just what are our needs
And He will always come through.
